Zohr field contract win for Bonatti

Italian oil and gas services provider and contractor, Bonatti Group, has been awarded an electrical and instrumentation contract for the Zohr gas development project in Egyptian waters. Bonatti's scope of work will focus on the onshore area of the project, however, and will include the supply of services, materials, and equipment required for the safe installation of the project's onshore electrical, cable, instrumentation, telecommunications, and fire and gas equipment.

Bonatti's latest contract win follows the award from engineering, procurement, and construction (EPC) contractor, Bechtel, to Bonatti's subsidiary, Carlo Gavazzi Egypt, in July 2017. Bonatti said the new contract would help to strengthen the group's position in the North African market. The group, which has had a presence in Egypt for decades, boasts an almost entirely local workforce that has been deployed on a host of projects in the country.
